Capclave 2007

Guest of Honor: Jeffrey Ford

October 2007 (more details later)

Hilton Washington/Silver Spring

Memberships: $40 through June 30, 2007
$50 July 1, 2007 through September 30, 2007
$55 at the door

www.capclave.org / info@capclave.org

The Maltese Dodo - SCENE ONE

1. EXT. ALLEY-WAY - NIGHT

Sam Dodo comes out the delivery door in the alley-way of his office building. His beak is long and beaky, his chin nonexistent. The steep rounded slope of his shoulders makes his body seem almost comical. He is what most private detectives would like to be, a hard, shifty bird, able to take care of himself in any situation, able to get the best of anybody whether criminal, client, or innocent bystander. CAMERA PANS with him as he sees an undersized demon in a neat gray hat and tan overcoat under a street-light. CAMERA PULLS IN on Sam's 38-caliber suction-cup dart gun.

La Marche de l’dodo

(March of the Dodos)
Capclave 2006

20 – 22 October 2006

Author Guest of Honor: Kim Stanley Robinson
Fan Guest of Honor: Tom Whitmore

Hilton Washington/Silver Spring
8727 Colesville Road
Silver Spring, Maryland

Capclave — the science fiction convention where reading is not extinct — is hosted by the Washington Science Fiction Association (www.wsfa.org)

Message from the Chair

“The great proof of madness is the disproportion of one’s designs to one’s means.” — Napoleon Bonaparte

So, it seems that deciding to chair a convention verifies that the chair isn’t crazy rather than proving that she is; that seems backwards. But, unlike Napoleon, my design is in proportion to my means. The design is that WSFA, via Capclave, once again does an excellent job of hosting people. The means are excellent people doing the actual work.

Capclave began and continues with the basic notion that people who are interested in books are interesting people, and that getting a group of them together results in marvelous conversation, not to mention a lot of fun. Thanks to those means I just mentioned we have a wonderful program, interesting events (several of which happily involve more food), places for people to gather, and many other things. And it worked: here you are.
Welcome to Capclave.

Elspeth Kovar
Chair, Capclave 2006

2006 Committee List

Chairman ......................................................... Elspeth Kovar
Dealers’ Room................................. Judy Frances Scheiner & Sam Scheiner
Fancy Dress Reception ......................... Colleen Cahill
Goh Liaison .................................................. Michael Jarrett Walsh
Hotel Liaison .............................................. Sam Pierce
Hotel Reference ........................................... Ben Yalow
Party Czar ..................................................... Sam Pierce
Programming .............................................. Elaine Brennan
Publications................................................... Michael Roy Nelson
Publicity ..................................................... Cathy Green & Samuel Lubell
Registration ................................................ Barry Newton
Staff Carolyn Frank, Rich Lynch, Samuel Lubell, Judy Newton, Meridel Newton, Lee Strong, Madeleine Yeh
Town Square .................. Kathleen Morrison & Erica Van Dommelen Ginter
Staff Ann Marie Rudolph
Treasurer ..................................................... Steve Smith
Web Site .................................................... Paul Hyperion Haggerty & Gayle Surrette

Acknowledgments

We wish to thank Steve Stiles for creating the illustrations for the cover of this convention guide, the Capclave 2007 ad on the back cover, and this year’s Capclave publicity flyers and con badge.

We also thank (in no particular order): Gordon van Gelder for providing copies of the Magazine of Fantasy & Science Fiction, Del Rey Books, Allied Advertising for providing posters of upcoming movies, University of

Your Hosts

The Washington Science Fiction Association is the oldest science fiction club in the greater Washington area. Its members are interested in all types of science fiction and fantasy literature as well as related areas such as fantasy and science fiction films, television, costuming, gaming, filking, convention-running, etc.

WSFA meets the first and third Fridays of every month at approximately 9:00 pm. Non-members are encouraged to attend. Meetings are held in members’ homes in Virginia and Maryland. For more information and directions, visit the WSFA.org calendar page or write to us at 7113
Wayne Drive, Annandale, VA 22003-1734. WSFA is a tax-exempt section 501(c)(4) organization; contributions to WSFA are not tax deductable.
ALLEN WOLD

married his wife, Diane, in 1972, and began his career as a full time writer. In 1986, he became a full time father, writing when he could make the time. In 2003, he became a full time writer again, when his daughter, Darcy, went off to college, at Pomona. He has published nine novels, several short stories (mostly for the Elf Quest anthologies), five non-fiction books on computers, and a number of articles, columns, reviews, and so forth, also concerning computers. Allen has been running his version of a writer’s workshop at conventions for about twenty years. Allen is a member of SFWA, and Toastmasters International (which gives him a captive audience).

JOHN C. WRIGHT

is a retired attorney, newspaperman and newspaper editor. In 1987, he graduated from the College and William and Mary’s Law School (going from the third oldest to the second oldest school in continuous use in the United States). His law practice was unsuccessful enough to drive him into bankruptcy soon thereafter. His stint as a newspaperman for the St. Mary’s Today was more rewarding spiritually, but, alas, also a failure financially. He presently works (successfully) as a writer in Virginia, where he lives in fairy-tale-like happiness with his wife, the authoress L. Jagi Lamplighter, and their three children: Orville, Wilbur, and Just Wright.

MIKE ZIPSER

was introduced to his first Science Fiction book by his friend Jerome when he was in the sixth grade. He’s been reading it almost exclusively ever since. Much later he and his lovely and pedantic wife (Beth) discovered fandom. Together they have worked on or run convention Art Shows and Programming for more years than they care to think about. When not reading Mike watches a whole lot of TV and horror films, plays RPGs, and even finds time to work for a cellular phone company.

---

Capclave 2006 Hours of Operation

[see the floor plans on pages 22 and 23 for locations]

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Dealers’ Room</th>
<th>CHESAPEAKE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Friday</td>
<td>4 pm – 8 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>10 am – 6 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>11 am – 3 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Autographing will be in the Dealers’ Room</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Filling</th>
<th>TBD</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Gaming</th>
<th>ASSEMBLY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Open gaming in the Town Square</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Registration</th>
<th>TBD</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Friday</td>
<td>3 pm – 10 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>10 am – 10 pm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>10 am – 2 pm (Capclave 2007 registration opens at noon)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Town Square (Con Suite)</th>
<th>ASSEMBLY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Friday</td>
<td>3 pm – 2 am</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>8:30 am – 3 am</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>9 am – 3 pm (The Dead Dodo party will start at 6 pm)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

WORKSHOPS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Contracts Workshop</th>
<th>COUNSEL</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>10 am – noon</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>How to Get a Real Agent</th>
<th>TWENTY I</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>11 am – 1 pm</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>How to Read Aloud</th>
<th>COUNSEL</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>10 am – noon</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reviewers’ Workshop</th>
<th>TWENTY I</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>4 – 6 pm</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Writers Workshop</th>
<th>TWENTY I</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>11 am – 1 pm</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Special Events
[see the Program Schedule for details]

WSFA Third Friday Meeting
Friday 8 pm – 9 pm TWENTY I
The Washington Science Fiction Association's traditional Third Friday meeting. Open to all Capclave members.

Author Guest of Honor Presentation — Time in Novels
Friday 9 pm – 10:30 pm CAPITOL
Kim Stanley Robinson

History of Fandom and an Appreciation of Wilson “Bob” Tucker
Friday 9 pm – ? ASSEMBLY & HOTEL BAR
Keith Stokes, Tom Whitmore, and Lenny Bailes

Author Guest of Honor Presentation — Global Warming
Saturday 3 pm – 4:30 pm CAPITOL
Kim Stanley Robinson

Fan Guest of Honor Presentation — Tom Whitmore & Friends
Saturday 5 pm – 6:30 pm CAPITOL
Teresa Nielsen Hayden, Jon Singer, and Tom Whitmore

Guests of Honor Presentation — Intentional Communities
Saturday 8 pm – 9 pm CAPITOL
Kim Stanley Robinson and Tom Whitmore discuss the formation of Intentional Communities.
Kim Stanley Robinson and Tom Whitmore.

Gaylactic Spectrum Awards Announcement
Saturday 8 pm – 9 pm ANNAPOLIS
The 2006 Gaylactic Spectrum Awards will be announced at the conclusion of the panel Alternative Sexualities in SFF.

“Fancy Dress” Reception
Saturday 9 pm – 11 pm POTOMAC
Join the Capclave committee and the Science Fiction and Fantasy Writers of America (SFWA) for a reception.

MICHAIL VELICHANSKY was born in the former Soviet Union, but left with his parents when he was five years old. After living in Austria and Italy, Michail's family received political asylum from the United States. Michail has been writing for five years. He received 1st place in the 1st quarter 2005 Writers of the Future award and recently made his first professional sale to the horror anthology Corpse Blossoms. He attended the Odyssey writing workshop in 2003.

SEAN WALLACE
was born in Miami, Florida, USA on January 1, 1976. His interest in the author E.C. Tubb began in the late 1980s, which eventually sparked his growing interest in early American, British, and Australian science fiction magazines, authors, and books. He has worked with a number of publishing companies, including Gryphon Books, Savanti Press, Dreamriders Workshop, etc. He is now a full-time senior editor at Wildside Press. He is also the publisher and owner of Prime Books, at www.primebooks.net

LAWRENCE WATT-EVANS
is the author of more than thirty novels, over one hundred short stories, over one hundred and fifty published articles, and a few comic books, as well as the editor of one published anthology. Most of his writing has been in the fields of science fiction, fantasy, horror, and comic books. He has been a full-time writer and editor for more than twenty-five years, and is always interested in new projects.

TOM WHITMORE
has been a bookseller for over thirty years and a partner in a bookstore for twenty-nine; The Other Change of Hobbit in Berkeley, California. He's been a co-chair at a Worldcon (ConJosé in 2002), and implemented the first example of Elevator Party Hosts. He's been a reviewer for Locus, and once made Gene Wolfe jealous by telling him how much writing reviews for computer magazines paid. He's a massage therapist and a student of Hakomi. He was on the founding board of the Cohousing Association in the US, and lived for several years in Puget Ridge Cohousing. He collected art at cons before discovering that his grandmother had been a print dealer for most of her life. And he lived in the DC area twice — once while working in a clerical job at the Library of Congress in the period of Nixon's impeachment, and once while working for the Office of Energy Information Validation in the Department of Energy. For stories of his connection with Aleister Crowley and his peculiar ability to find books, you'll have to ask in person.
BUD SPARHAWK
started reading science fiction around 1948 or so, touching on the Bradbury stories in Colliers and Reader’s Digest. His serious reading of SF, and the beginnings of his desire to write, began later, when he was in his teens.

STEVE STILES
received his first fanzine in 1957 and has been enthusiastically active in SF fandom ever since, publishing fanzines and writing and drawing for them. In 1968, he was elected TAFF representative, and in 1998, he won the first annual Bill Rotsler Award. As a professional artist he’s been active since 1973, starting out with underground comics and Marvel's British department, and going on for a ten-year stint with the Eisner and Harvey award-winning Xenozoic Tales as well as a wide number of other comics. One of his favorite works is The Adventures of Professor Thintwhistle and His Incredible Aether Flyer, a collaboration with author Richard Lupoff.

MICHAEL SWANWICK
has received the Hugo, Nebula, Theodore Sturgeon, and World Fantasy Awards for his work. Stations of the Tide was honored with the Nebula Award and was also nominated for the Hugo and Arthur C. Clarke Awards. “The Edge of the World,” was awarded the Theodore Sturgeon Memorial Award in 1989 and nominated for both the Hugo and World Fantasy Awards. “Radio Waves” received the World Fantasy Award in 1996. “The Very Pulse of the Machine” received the Hugo Award in 1999, as did “Scherzo with Tyrannosaur” in 2000. His books include In the Drift, Vacuum Flowers, Griffin's Egg, Stations of the Tide, The Iron Dragon's Daughter, Jack Faust, and Bones of the Earth.

DIANE TURNSHEK has written short fiction and works with teen writers each year in the Alpha Workshop. This year, she’s also the Eastern Regional Director of SFWA and will be running the Nebula Awards Weekend this coming May.

CATHRYNNNE VALENTE
is a novelist and short story writer with three books out currently The Labyrinth, Yume no Hon: The Book of Dreams and The Grass-Cutting Sword from Wildside/Prime, and a series The Orphan’s Tales due out from Bantam Spectra just a few days after Capclave. Her short fiction has appeared in the Year’s Best Fantasy and Horror, the PEN collection The Book of Voices, Fantasy Magazine, Jabberwocky, and is forthcoming from Electric Velocipede, Best New Fantasy, and Salon Fantastique, an anthology from Ellen Datlow.

A Note on Programming Rooms
We’re taking a distributed approach to programming rooms this year, thanks to the Hilton’s architecture and the presence of the University of Maryland football players at the hotel for part of the weekend.

Annapolis and Severn Rooms: These rooms are on the hotel’s second floor ballroom level. We believe the football players may be using them on Friday afternoon and evening as well as Saturday morning, so opening the door to check what’s going on in there during that period is probably not a good idea.

Assembly Room: The con’s social center as well as the location for some kaffeeklatsches and more informal group discussions, is located on the Mezzanine level of the hotel. It is reachable either via a short staircase or by a small elevator/wheelchair lift from the main lobby level.

You can also use the elevators on the second floor between the Potomac Room and Maryland Ballroom or the stairwell across the hall from that elevator lobby to reach the Mezzanine level.

Capitol Ballroom: This room is on the main lobby level of the hotel, tucked away down a short hallway to the left of the hotel reception desk (if you’re facing the reception desk).

Counsel Room: This room is on the Mezzanine level of the hotel.

TWENTY I and TWENTY II: “TWENTY” is our code for the rooms numbered X20 where X = floor number. We hope the hotel will tell us which floor these rooms will be located on Real Soon Now.

Floor plans for the main function rooms are located on pages 22 and 23.

Program Changes
Notices about schedule changes, updates, etc. will be posted near the Program Operations area in the Town Square (Assembly).

Autographing
Autographing sessions will take place in the Dealers’ Room. Check the schedule, which will be posted near the Program Operations area in the Town Square (Assembly).
KARL SCHROEDER

was born in Brandon Manitoba. He is the second science fiction writer to come out of this small community — the first was A.E. van Vogt! He currently divides his time between writing fiction and consulting — chiefly in the area of Foresight Studies and technology. You can read his story “Community” at WorldChanging.com. Or check out his new blog, Age of Embodiment, which focuses on culture, society, art and life in the post-post-modern age.

DARRELL SCHWEITZER

is the author of The White Isle, The Shattered Goddess, and The Mask of the Sorcerer, in addition to about 275 published short stories. His credits include Interzone, Twilight Zone, Postscripts (where his interview with last year’s Capclave GoH Howard Waldrop is in the current issue; he has a story in the next one), Night Cry, Amazing, Fantastic, Galaxy, and numerous anthologies. He is the author of books about Lord Dunsany and HP Lovecraft, an essayist, poet, one of the few ever to rhyme “Cthulhu” in a limerick and live to tell about it. He is also a long-time attendee of DC area conventions and can tell you old Disclave stories.

GEORGE SCITHERS

was the founding editor of Isaac Asimov’s Science Fiction Magazine, for which he won the Hugo twice, in 1979 and 1981. He edited Amazing from 1982 to 1986, and has been co-editor (and occasionally, publisher) of Weird Tales since 1988. He’s sold his own fiction to editors including John W. Campbell, Jr., Ben Bova, and Frederick Pohl. He’s been active as a fan — from running the 1963 Worldcon, Discon I in Washington, DC, to publishing Amra, which received two Best Fanzine Hugos — in 1963 and 1967.

JERI SMITH-READY

has been writing fiction since the night she had her first double espresso. She holds a master’s degree in environmental policy and lives in Maryland with her husband, two cats, and two hounds (current count). Jeri’s first novel, urban fantasy Requiem for the Devil, was released in 2001. Her new epic fantasy trilogy will begin November 2006 with the Luna Books publication of The Eyes of Crow.

MARIA V. SNYDER

changed careers in 1995 from being a Meteorologist to a Novelist when she began working on her first novel, Poison Study. Published in October 2005, Poison Study has gotten many great reviews, including a Starred Review in Publisher’s Weekly magazine. Poison Study has won the Compton Crook Award for best first book of 2005, which is given by the Baltimore Science Fiction Society, and has also been nominated for a Romance Writers of America’s RITA Award in the Best First Book Category.
gan last year with A Princess of Roumania, came out this summer from Tor Books, and will be followed next year by The White Tyger. Other recent titles include No Traveler Returns, from PS publishing, and Three Marys and If Lions Could Speak and Other Stories, both from Cosmos/Wildside. Out of print books include The Gospel of Corax, Celestis, Soldiers of Paradise, Sugar Rain, and The Cult of Loving Kindness. Often nominated for the usual awards, he has never won any of them, or anything else for that matter.

KIM STANLEY ROBINSON

is widely regarded as one of the finest science fiction writers alive today. He has been writing since 1975 but is best known for his ‘Mars Trilogy’ that started with Red Mars in 1992, which won the 1993 Nebula Award for best novel, continued with Green Mars (1993), which won the 1994 Hugo Award for best novel and concluded with Blue Mars (1995) that also won the Hugo Award for best novel in 1996. He is also well known for his ‘Orange Country Trilogy,’ The Wild Shore (1984), The Gold Coast (1988) and Pacific Edge (1990) with Pacific Edge winning the Campbell Memorial Award. Antarctica (1998) dealt with many of the ecological issues surrounding Antarctica. The Years of Rice and Salt (2002) was an ambitious epic imagining a world where the Plague wiped out 95% of the population of Europe, leaving the East to become the dominate force in the world. His latest book, Fifty Degrees Below (2005) is the second part of a trio of books under the title ‘The Capital Code,’ which tackle the issues of global warming, science and politics. He also has a story in the Washington Science Fiction Association’s new anthology, Future Washington (2004).

BENJAMIN ROSENBAUM

got a nomination for the 2005 Best Novelette Hugo Award for his story “Benjamin Rosenbaum’s Biographical Notes to ‘A Discourse on the Nature of Causality, with Air-Planes’ by Benjamin Rosenbaum” (All-Star Zeppelin Adventure Stories). Benjamin has published stories in Asimov’s, Fantasy & Science Fiction, The Year’s Best Science Fiction 17, and other publications.

SAM SCHEINER

is a long-time fan and scientist. His scientific areas of expertise are ecology and evolution, where he has published four books and over 60 papers. He has also co-authored a book with SF author Phyllis Eisenstein on arthritis. Currently he works at the National Science Foundation giving away money.

LAWRENCE M. SCHOEN

holds a Ph.D. in cognitive psychology, spent ten years as a college professor, and currently works as the chief compliance officer for a series of mental health and addiction treatment facilities. He’s also one of the world’s foremost authorities on the Klingon language. He lives in Philadelphia.
We know that Kim Stanley Robinson — who prefers to be known as Stan Robinson, and whom I have seen actually fail to hear his never-willingly-used legal first name shouted across a room at him by someone not in the know — has been getting wiser over the past quarter century, because his books have been. We know that Stan Robinson is getting older because we look in the mirror and the same thing that’s happening to us must be happening to him, too. But the last time I saw Stan — July 2006 in Acadia, Maine, where he and Lisa Nowell and their two kids David and Timothy spend part of every summer in a stunning family camp — it was a bit like shaking hands with a time warp. The eyes were clear, the hair was thick, the face was thin and tanned, and he stood perfectly upright, balanced on the balls of his feet, as though ready, once again, to bound somewhere.

He looked at me the way a time traveller might look at a friend from long ago, as though he were deeply happy I was still alive, even though I had changed tragically.

— So then, he’d say to me. What’s it like up here? Is there anything I can do to help?
— Probably not, I’d say. But we could do with a bit of your spirit. We could do with another story by Kim Stanley Robinson that tells us how the world is but tells us, also, that there may be something we can do about it.
— Easy, the time-traveller Stan in my mind’s eye would say at this point. All you need to do is travel from now till then. All you need to do is notice the way there. All you need to do is put the route down correctly, the way any sf writer should be able to do, it’s the job, isn’t it? It’s the job to look very carefully and put it down: this leads to this, this leads to this, this leads to this, this leads to this, and this this leads to the then we want. Or to the then we fear. Easy.

I’m with Liz Hand. We have driven up to Acadia to say hello and talk. The four of us (Lisa comes outdoors and joins us) sit on the deck in Acadia and look at the lake, which seems not to be under any threat, and at the trees, and the small boats, and the rock garden; and we talk about the world here, and the world outside: the world of books, the world of the friends we have shared, inside sf and out, for these decades. And it does all begin to seem possible again. As usual, Stan penetrates my own quasi-professional, extremely well-used moroseness — my too easy gloom about every single thing the future has in store for us — with his old radiant sanity, his sanity as always. (He is on record as will publish the author’s long-awaited postmodern historical epic, The Last Witchfinder. In June of 2004 Jim and his wife, Kathy, produced a series of Tolkien Lesson Plans for the Houghton Mifflin website.

KIM STANLEY ROBINSON by John Clute

PATRICK NIELSEN HAYDEN

is an anthologist, book editor, musician, and fan. His original anthology series Starlight won the World Fantasy Award, and stories from it won the Hugo, Nebula, Locus, Tiptree, and Sturgeon Awards. With Jane Yolen, he edits the annual Year’s Best SF and Fantasy for Teens. With his wife, Teresa Nielsen Hayden, he co-edited the Hugo-nominated fanzine Izzard, won TAFF in 1985, and helped found the New York Review of Science Fiction; today, the Nielsen Haydens are among the regular instructors at the Viable Paradise writers’ workshop, and co-write the weblog Making Light. Together, in 2003, they were awarded the Edward E. Smith Memorial Award (the “Skylark”), for service to the field. Patrick has been a finalist for the Hugo for Best Professional Editor four times. For a living, he has edited literary criticism, book club mailings, and instruction manuals for punchcard systems. He works as a senior editor and the manager of SF and fantasy for Tor Books, and plays lead guitar and sings with the New York City band Whisperado.

TERESA NIELSEN HAYDEN

is an editor, writer, and fan. With her husband, Patrick Nielsen Hayden, she co-edited the Hugo-nominated fanzine Izzard, won TAFF in 1985, and helped found the New York Review of Science Fiction; today, the Nielsen Haydens are among the regular instructors at the Viable Paradise writers’ workshop, and co-write the weblog Making Light. Together, in 2003, they were awarded the Edward E. Smith Memorial Award (the “Skylark”), for service to the field. Teresa was a finalist for the Hugo for Best FanWriter in 1984 and 1991, and her essay collection Making Book (NESFA Press, 1994) was a finalist for the Hugo for Best Non-Fiction Book. For a living, she has edited comics, prurient novels, and literary criticism reference books. She works as a consulting editor for Tor Books.

TERRI OSBORNE

PAUL PARK

lives in Berkshire County with his wife Deborah and his children Lucius and Miranda. His novel The Tourmaline, second in the fantasy series that be-EDWARD M. LERNER
began writing SF full-time with Probe, his first novel. His hard SF novel Moonstruck offers a fresh look at and a twist on the classic First Contact tale. His appearances in leading SF magazines include the cyberspace novel Survival Instinct (serialized in Analog) and the InterstellarNet series of novelettes (in Analog and Artemis) about the century-long evolution of a star-spanning, radio-based, trading community. His InterstellarNet novel A New Order of Things will be serialized in Analog beginning in May 2006. His shorter works have also appeared in the anthologies Year’s Best SF 7 and WSFA Press’ own Future Washington.

ERNEST LILLEY
is the editor and publisher of SFRevu.com, a monthly on-line ‘zine for science fiction reviews, news and interviews.

JIM MANN
has been involved with fandom for a bit over 30 years. He’s worked on a number of cons, ranging from locals to Worldcons. He is also an editor for NESFA Press, editing the works of, among others, Cordwainer Smith, William Tenn, John W. Campbell, Anthony Boucher, and, currently, James Blish. He also writes reviews, mostly publishing them at www.dpsinfo.com/jblog.

THOMAS McCabe
is a lifelong Mars enthusiast and a career intelligence analyst currently employed as an aviation analyst by the Department of Defense in Washington, DC. He is also a lieutenant colonel in the US Air Force Reserve. His writings have been published in Air And Space Power Journal, Air Chronicles, the Royal Air Force Air Power Review, Strategic Review, and Aviation Week and Space Technology.

VICTORIA McMANUS is a YA author, reviewer, and interviewer. Victoria resides in Philadelphia.

NANCY JANE MOORE
lives in Washington, DC and works as a legal editor. She attended Clarion West in 1997 and has short stories in many anthologies, including WSFA Press’ Future Washington.

JAMES MORROW
is best known for the Godhead Trilogy. The first installment, Towing Jehovah, winner of the World Fantasy Award, recounts the efforts of a super tanker captain to entomb the corpse of God in an Arctic glacier. Jim’s newest book is The Cat’s Pajamas and Other Stories, and his latest short story, “The Second Coming of Charles Darwin,” figures prominently in the recently launched Amazon Shorts program. In March of 2006 William Morrow saying he thinks the species has a better than 50% chance of surviving this century.) It is not as though nothing had changed in the world over the decades since we first met; it is, rather, that Stan Robinson has never given up attempting to say something good. He is one of the most deeply responsible persons I have ever met; he may be the most responsible writer whose works I have ever loved. He continues to speak good of us. He is necessary. He is a time traveller.

I think of something I wrote fifteen years ago about Stan, in a light vein, about one kind of uprightness he has always exhibited. It might be an idea [I said, more or less] to watch Stan Robinson walk. (This is a paragraph which, if he reads it, is likely to make him feel like a centipede trying to remember how to.) From the base of its spine to the top of its head the body of Stan Robinson moves as a natural biped’s might in the wild, perfectly upright, extremely still. A tureen might balance on the top of the head of Stan Robinson, like the antlers of Bambi. The center of gravity of this body lies low, somewhere down around the pelvis, as befits the center of gravity of a Natural Biped, a term which excludes the rest of us evolutes with bad backs. It is a body which is happy to use its legs. In the mind’s eye of one whose has read most of his many novels and stories, it is the secret body of every one of Stan Robinson’s protagonists. Watching Stan Robinson walk (if he hasn’t read this paragraph yet) is a lesson in the body English of his books. Reading a novel by Stan Robinson — following one of his protagonists up hill and down dale, and up another damned hill before lunch — is a lesson in how words can be made responsible for their every move.

I first ran across Stan himself as the author of a brisk, swift — and, except for it’s being written before the release of the posthumous mainstream novels, still comprehensive — study of Philip K Dick, a book I reviewed somewhere. I was in London. Stan wrote me a while after the review appeared. He was in the USA, or in Nepal, or in Zurich. I can’t remember where, he seemed a natural traveller. He told me they would be coming through London, and perhaps we might meet. I wrote back to a poste restante somewhere and said Of course. Yes. So Judith and I met Stan and Lisa Nowell — they’d already been married a couple of years — here in the old flat in Camden Town, which Stan since used briefly in a story with an exemplary Stan Robinson title, “A History of the Twentieth Century with Illustrations” (1991), in which he was sternly kind to our infernal amplitude of clutter and device. I noticed that on this first visit Stan moved around the flat without knocking anything over (this was not usual for guests). He seemed to treat the flat — as one later noticed he treated the world itself — as though it deserved is a scientist and a science fiction writer living in Quincy, Mass. He has a PhD in Biochemistry from Johns Hopkins and works at a pharmaceutical company called Biogen Idec. He has published short stories in Asimov’s and F&SF. His first novel Radio Freefall will come out next summer from Tor.
MATTHEW JARPE

JANE JEWELL
is the executive director of the Science Fiction & Fantasy Writers of America and the Emergency Medical Fund coordinator. She’s also a freelance photographer for the magazine Locus. Jane lives in Virginia, with her husband, author Peter Heck, and three children, Orville, Roland, and Justinian.

MINDY L. KLASKY
learned to read when her parents told her that she could travel anywhere with a book in her hands. When she realized that lawyering kept her from writing, Mindy became a librarian, and she now manages a large law library in Washington, DC. Her most recent novel is Girl’s Guide to Witchcraft (in stores, October 2006), and she can be reached through her website: mindyklasky.com.

YOJI KONDO
who writes science fiction under the pseudonym of Eric Kotani, headed the astrophysics laboratory at the Johnson Space Center in Houston during the Apollo missions, served as director of the geosynchronous satellite observatory for 15 years, and has taught at several universities; currently he teaches at the Catholic University of America. He has published over 200 scientific papers and has received the NASA Medal for Exceptional Scientific Achievement and had an asteroid named for him in 2000. Yoji received the Isaac Asimov Memorial Award in 2003 (the previous recipients included Arthur C. Clarke, Stephen Hawking, and Stephen J. Gould). He has published eight science fiction books and edited Requiem: New Collected Works by Robert A. Heinlein and Tributes to the Grand Master.

BARBARA KRASNOFF has published short stories in Lady Churchill’s Rosebud Wristlet, Amazing, Weird Tales, and Descant. She’s also written Robots: Reel to Real, which was supposed to head up a young adult series of books called How It Works — but the publisher was eaten by a larger publisher instead.

L. JAGI LAMPLIGHTER has stories published in The Leading Edge, Dreams of Decadence, and Don’t Open This Book!, Marvin Kaye’s anthology of dark fantasy stories. She has just finished her first novel. She is married to John C. Wright and presently lives in Virginia, with their three children, Orville, Roland, and Justinian.
LAURA ANNE GILMAN is a former Executive Editor of Roc/NAL. Laura Anne left her day job at the end of 2003, in order to put more energy into her own writing. Her first original novel, the fantasy/caper Staying Dead, came out in 2004, followed by Curse The Dark in 2005 and Bring It On in July 2006, with the next scheduled for 2007. Her YA trilogy, Grail Quest, came out from HarperCollins this year. She is also the author of several non-fiction books for teenagers, and co-edited the anthologies OtherWere: Stories of Transformation and Treachery & Treason.

DAVID HARTWELL
edits the annual Year's Best SF and Year's Best Fantasy (with Kathryn Cramer) anthologies. He is senior editor at Tor Books and previously worked at Arbor House, William Morrow, and Pocket Books/Simon & Schubert. He co-edited (with Kathryn Cramer), among others The Ascent of Wonder, an anthology on hard sf that was followed by The Hard SF Renaissance. He also serves as Reviews and Features Editor for the New York Review of Science Fiction. He has 31 Hugo nomination to date for Best Editor and Best Semiprozine. He is the oldest and longest employed book editor in SF.

PETER HECK
is the author of the “Mark Twain Mysteries” series Crime: Death on the Mississippi, A Connecticut Yankee in Criminal Court, The Prince and the Prosecutor, The Guilty Abroad, The Mysterious Strangler and Tom's Lawyer. Peter's newest book is No Phule Like an Old Phule, which continues Robert Asprin’s “Phule's Company” series. Peter is also a regular reviewer for Asimov's. Besides the written word, his interests include music (playing lead guitar with Col. Leonard's Irregulars) and chess (founding member of the Chestertown Chess Club, and a USCF member).

JOHN G. HEMRY has written the Stark's War series and JAG in Space series (A Just Determination, Burden of Proof, Rule of Evidence and the upcoming Against All Enemies). In August 2006 he'll start a new series (The Lost Fleet) under the pen name Jack Campbell. His short story “Small Moments in Time” from the December 2004 issue of Analog was nominated for a Nebula Award.

WALTER H. HUNT
is the author of four science-fiction novels published by Tor Books, most recently The Dark Crusade. He is an avid student of history, a devoted baseball fan, an active Freemason and a happy husband and father. He spent eighteen years in a hi-tech career before becoming a full time professional writer in 2001.
“Sure,” I said, I’ll be glad to write something about Tom Whitmore. I know all about him”. After all, he lived in my guest room (in the basement, hence the trollhood) for over three years, most of which we spent talking about anything and everything.

But, now, sitting down to write, I realize that I don’t know anywhere near as much about Tom as I think I do. Things I don’t know include when he was born (he’s younger in years and sometimes older in wisdom than I), or even where (northern California, I assume, because he has all the stigmata of someone raised here), or what schools he went to (and besides, like anyone truly educated, he never stops learning), or any of the standard biographical information. I don’t even know how long he’s been involved in fandom.

Fortunately, there is the World Wide Web. A quick search dug up details of facts I knew (and a few I didn’t). Tom has been a partner in The Other Change of Hobbit, a SF/F bookstore in Berkeley, California, for close to 30 years (so he’s obviously been a fan longer than that.) He is a massage therapist and a student of Hakomi, an experiential, body-body centered psychotherapy. He’s been involved on both national and local levels with the co-housing movement. Besides Other Change and massage, he has been, at one time or another; a clerk at the Library of Congress, a tech writer, a researcher; and a copyeditor. He’s worked for the DoE.

Tom was co-chair, with Kevin Standlee, of ConJosé, the 2002 Worldcon. He is the mastermind behind Elevator Party Hosts. He’s reviewed books for LOCUS and other publications. He has been a program participant at conventions on at least three continents. Denvention 3, the 2008 Worldcon has named him fan guest of honor. He did, indeed, find an Alistair Crowley manuscript in his garage. (If you don’t get him to tell you the tale, check out Raiders of the Lost Basement at http://www.skepticfiles.org/mys2/crowstry.htm.) In the early days of the Society for Creative Anachronisms, Inc., he was known as Tom the Piper’s Son. He collects books and he loves to dance.

(I also learned that there was were several generations of Sir Thomas Whitmores living in Shropshire, England in the 17th century, and that President Thomas J. Whitmore is a character in the movie Independence Day. Neither of these facts have anything to do with our Tom, but one Currently, he also edits SCI FI, the official magazine of the SCI FI Channel. His most recent short story appears in The Journal of Pulse-Pounding Narratives.

DOUG FRATZ is currently reviewing books for Science Fiction Weekly, and has been reviewing and writing on SF for over 30 years. Doug was the publisher and editor of the Hugo-Award-nominated magazine THRUST/QUANTUM for 20 years. He is also an environmental scientist with expertise in global environmental issues and environmental chemistry.

JIM FREUND describes himself as an editor, writer, and producer for “New and Old Media”. Each Saturday morning between 5 and 7 am on WBAI (99.5 fm) in New York, he produces and hosts Hour of the Wolf, a two-hour live radio program presenting science fiction, fantasy, and related fields of endeavor. You can listen on your own schedule through the website. While the show concentrates on literary sf and fantasy, they do admit to having an occasional “Guilty Pleasures” episode regarding film and television.

ESTHER FRIESNER won the Nebula Award for Best Short Story of 1995 for her work,”Death and the Librarian,” and the Nebula for Best Short Story of 1996 for “A Birth Day.” (A Birth Day” was also a 1996 Hugo Award finalist.) Her novelette, “Jesus at the Bat” was on the final Nebula ballot in the same year that “Death and the Librarian” won the award. In addition, she has won the Romantic Times award for Best New Fantasy Writer in 1986 and the Skylark Award in 1994. Her short story,”All Vows,” took second place in the Asimov’s SF Magazine Readers’ Poll for 1993 and was a finalist for the Nebula in 1994. Her Star Trek: Deep Space Nine novel, Warchild, made the USA Today bestseller list. She has published twenty-seven novels so far. Most recent titles include The Psalms of Herod and The Sword of Mary from White Wolf, Child of the Eagle from Baen Books, and Temping Fate from Dutton/Penguin.

GREGORY FROST got an excellent review from Publisher’s Weekly in 2005 for Attack of the Jazz Giants & Other Stories. His latest novel, Fitcher’s Brides, from Tor Books, is a recasting of the fairy tale of Bluebeard as a terrifying story of faith and power in 19th century New York State. His fantasy duology, Shadowbridge, will be published in spring 2008 by Del Rey Books. Frost’s latest stories are “Tengu Mountain,” in Datlow & Windling’s anthology, The Faery Reel, “So Coldly Sweet, So Deadly Fair,” in the April 2006 edition of Weird Tales, and “Ill-Met in Ilium” in the anthology Secret History. He is the current Fiction Writing Workshop Director at Swarthmore College in Swarthmore, PA, and has twice taught the Clarion Science Fiction & Fantasy Writers Workshop at Michigan State University.
levels. He currently teaches science fiction and fantasy classes at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia and writes full time.

KEITH R.A. DECANDIDO is the author of over 30 novels, as well as dozens of short stories, comic books, eBooks, essays, and nonfiction books, many of them in various media universes: Star Trek, Buffy the Vampire Slayer, Serenity, Farscape, Andromeda, World of Warcraft, Starcraft, Spider-Man, and much much more. His original novel Dragon Precinct was published in 2004, and his most recent work is the Buffy novel Blackout, which focuses on a previous Slayer, Nikki Wood.

MICHAEL DIRDA
is the winner of the 1993 Pulitzer Prize for criticism. He was an editor and writer for The Washington Post Book World for twenty years. His tasks ranged from writing reviews of literary fiction, intellectual history, children’s books, science fiction and fantasy, mysteries, poetry, and biography, to features and personal essays about books and writing for the Book World column, “Readings.” His latest book is Book by Book: Notes on Reading and Life (Henry Holt & Co., 2006). His next book will be Beyond the Lifetime Reading Plan: The Next 100 (Harcourt, 2007).

THOMAS M. DOYLE

ANDY DUNCAN
has won a Sturgeon Award and two World Fantasy Awards for his short fiction and his collection Beluthahatchie and Other Stories. He claims that this year’s Capclave GoH, Stan Robinson, can verify that he’s friendly, well-informed, and doesn’t make noise when he eats.

DAVID LOUIS EDELMAN is the author of Infoquake, just out from Pyr. “Hack the body, and the mind will follow.” Over the past ten years, he’s programmed web sites for the U.S. Army and the FBI, taught software to the U.S. Congress and the World Bank, written articles for the Washington Post and Baltimore Sun, and directed the marketing departments of biometric and e-commerce companies.

SCOTT EDELMAN became his trek to the editor-in-chief position at Science Fiction Weekly decades ago, when he worked as an assistant editor at Marvel Comics. Between these two positions, this four-time Hugo Award nominee in the category of Best Editor was the founding editor of the award-winning magazine Science Fiction Age, in addition to editing Sci-Fi Universe, Sci-Fi Flix and Satellite Orbit. of the things he and I share is a love for wondering down interesting informational byways, so I thought I’d mention them anyway.)

Ok, not a great haul, and hardly enough for a decent article. I pondered going to his brothers (he is the youngest of three) or his partners in the bookstore, or even asking Tom, himself. Then I realized that I might not know a lot of facts about Tom, but I know something else, and those are the important things.

TOM CARES ABOUT BOOKS. Well, duh, you say: no one who doesn’t love books would be a partner in an independent specialty bookstore. But obvious though it is, it has to be said, because it’s such an important part of him. Tom cares about books, and what the books say, and the ideas in them, and the beauty of the writing (or lack of same) and about books as objects. And Tom knows an amazing amount about books. Walk into the store and ask him what you want to read, and he’ll tell you; he’s seldom wrong. Want the name of a book you read 15 years ago and all you remember is the hero’s girlfriend’s name and a single plot twist: Tom’s your man. Want some bibliographic or biographic information about an author and chanced are Tom knows, or knows exactly where to look it up. Having Tom as a housemate is something like living with an interactive card catalogue. (Moreover, having Tom as a housemate and having an account at Other Change was like living with The Book Fairy; the most wonderful things used to appear, just when I was looking for something new to read. Heaven!)

TOM CARES ABOUT GETTING THE JOB DONE, RIGHT. I’ve worked with or for Tom on innumerable cons, including the last two San Francisco Bay Area Worldcons (one of which he co-chaired), for 15 or so years as Safety Monitor at the San Francisco LGBT Pride Parade, and on three years worth of “Oh my Ghod Tom we have to get the house clean before the party starts” panics. He is, bar none, the best Real Time problem solver I have ever known. He’s not, unless forced, a trouble-shooter, because Tom prefers to get to potential trouble and deal with it before it needs to be shot. And if trouble develops, Tom’s the one wading in, defusing the tension, listening to everyone, sorting things out and finding a solution that works for the greatest number of people.

Tom cares about getting the job done right in another way too. He cares that what he is doing is the right thing to do ethically. Both of his two current careers (bookseller and massage therapist), are, as he practices them, Right Livelihood in the Buddhist sense. He throws himself into causes he feels are just: gay rights, charity auctions, statewide massage therapist licensing programs, inclusive convention programming, co-housing. And all of our elaborate, late-night-over-pizza-and-beer, dis-discussions about how to extract revenge for someone's nefarious deeds ended (after we'd had a great time thinking them up) not being acted upon, because "but that would be wrong".

TOM IS SOMETIMES TOO STUBBORN FOR HIS OWN GOOD. He believes in giving everything and everyone a fair chance, and he won't give up on something as long as there is the least teeny tiny chance that it might be made to work. He just doesn't give up. This can be maddening to his friends who want him to give up and get on with something more amenable to success. However, it's one of the reasons that he is so good at getting the job done, even when the job is impossible. I would have said (and did say on more than one occasion) that it was close to impossible to get all the various sub-cultures and interest-groups of Bay Area fandom working together and communicating well, but Tom kept at it until pretty much everyone bought in to a shared vision for ConJosé.

Which brings us to: TOM CARES ABOUT COMMUNITY. When you look Tom from a distance, you realize everything about him boils down to working towards building communities. Fandom, Cohousing, Parade, Hakomi and the rest are all exercises in community building to him. Bring people together and helping them find the shared path is what Tom is all about, and those of us who are members of the various communities are lucky to have him.

Oh, and I know one other, very important thing about him. I'm lucky to have Tom Whitmore as a friend.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sarah Goodman is an anthropologist by training, a historical-re-enactor by avocation, and a bureaucrat by profession. A SJOF (Secret Journeyman of Fandom), she's known Tom Whitmore for on the order of 26 years (although the details of their initial meeting are lost in the depths of time, memory and (in all probability) a really good convention party). She lives in Oakland, California in a Beaux Arts & Craftsman bungalow (less than 6 miles from The Other Change of Hobbit), but previously had a Wee Cottage by the Sea in nearby Daly City, wherein the basement of which Tom lived from 2002 to 2003.

Michael Capobianco has published one solo science fiction novel, Burster, and is co-author, with William Barton, of the controversial hardcore sf novels Iris, Alpha Centauri, Fellow Traveler, and White Light. He served as President of the Science Fiction and Fantasy Writers of America (SFWA) from 1996 – 1998 and received the Service to SFWA Award in 2004. An amateur astronomer, Capobianco is a member of the International Occultation and Timing Association (IOTA). His current obsessions include Saturn's moon Iapetus, the Washington Nationals, and Lost.

Brenda Clough's latest novel, Doors of Death and Life, was published by Tor Books in May 2000. Doors was released, bound with its predecessor, How Like A God, in a Science Fiction Book Club edition titled Suburban Gods. She also writes short stories and occasional nonfiction including a story appearing in Patrick Nielsen Hayden's anthology Starlight 3 and a story in the July-August 2002 issue of Analog. She has taught "Writing F&SF" at the Writer's Center in Bethesda, Maryland.

Kathryn Cramer is the author of best-selling Star Wars novels and Star Trek novels, but her most famous genre work was the 1984 novelization of the television miniseries V. Cripsin and noted fantasy author Andre Norton wrote two Witch World novels together. Her major science fiction undertaking is the StarBridge series, which will be reissued in omnibus editions from Meisha Merlin in 2007. Crispin's newest work is an original fantasy trilogy for Harper/Eos, The Exiles of Bo'qurain. Book One, Storms of Destiny, was released August 2005, and she is hard at work on Book Two, Winds of Vengeance. Book Three, Flames of Chaos, will be her next project. She currently teaches writing workshops at Anne Arundel Community College and DragonCon.

A. C. Crispin is the author of best-selling Star Wars novels and Star Trek novels, but her most famous genre work was the 1984 novelization of the television miniseries V. Crispin and noted fantasy author Andre Norton wrote two Witch World novels together. Her major science fiction undertaking is the StarBridge series, which will be reissued in omnibus editions from Meisha Merlin in 2007. Crispin's newest work is an original fantasy trilogy for Harper/Eos, The Exiles of Bo'qurain. Book One, Storms of Destiny, was released August 2005, and she is hard at work on Book Two, Winds of Vengeance. Book Three, Flames of Chaos, will be her next project. She currently teaches writing workshops at Anne Arundel Community College and DragonCon.

Dennis Danvers has written eight science fiction and fantasy novels, Wilderness (Bram Stoker nominee), Time and Time Again, Circuit of Heaven (New York Times Notable, 1998), End of Days, The Fourth World, The Watch (New York Times Notable, 2002; Booklist 10 Best SF novels, 2002), and The Bright Spot (under the pseudonym Robert Sydney). He holds a Ph.D. in literature and an MFA in fiction and has taught writing and literature at all
Capclave 2006 Program Participants

ROGER MACBRIDE ALLEN
is the author of over twenty science fiction novels. Among his most recent works is The Shores of Tomorrow, the third book in the trilogy started by The Depths of Time and The Ocean of Years. Two of his most popular stand-alone novels are The Ring of Charon and The Shattered Sphere. His latest book is BSI Starside: The Cause of Death, which is the first book in a new series. He is working on the second book in the BSI Starside series, currently titled Brief Candle.

BOB ANGELL
was born under a full moon, a telling detail. As a Libra, he is always seeking balance; he rides a unicycle and wishes he could juggle better. You may have seen his work in Asimov's, The Baltimore Review, Gargoyle, and other places.

CATHERINE ASARO
has a Ph.D. in chemical physics and M.A. in physics. She was a physics professor until 1990, when she established Molecudyne Research, which she currently runs. A former ballerina, Catherine has performed with ballets and in musicals on both coasts and in Ohio. In the 1980's she was a principal dancer and artistic director of the Mainly Jazz Dancers and the Harvard University Ballet. Catherine's fiction blends hard science fiction and exciting space adventure with some elements of romance. She is best known for her Saga of the Skolian Empire series. Her novels include Primary Inversion, Catch the Lightning, The Last Hawk, The Radiant Seas, The Veiled Web, The Quantum Rose, and others.

LENNY BAILES
has been a freelance computer consultant and journalist for a number of years and a hard-case science fiction fan for most of his life. He has contributed sercon jottings (“sercon” is an in-crowd contraction for “serious-constructive”) to various litcrit zines and online discussions. He also publishes Whistlestar, his fanzine inspired by the career of Cat Stevens.

ELAINE BRENNAN
still thinks that working on conventions is fun (at least most of the time). When left to her own devices, she can generally be found either curled up with a cat and a book or staring fixedly at her computer.

COLLEEN CAHILL
works at the Library of Congress where she spends some time as the Recommending Officer for Science Fiction and Fantasy. By night, she writes reviews for Fast-Forward TV, SFReviu, BookPage, the WSFA Journal and several others. Librarian by profession, reviewer by avocation, reader by addiction.

Lunacon®50
Setting the Gold Standard by building on everything that's come before.

Starring:
Writer Guest of Honor: Christopher Moore
Artist Guest of Honor: Dave Seeley
Fan Guest of Honor: Frank Dietz

Also Featuring:
Friday Night Concerts! A world class Art Show! A killer Masquerade! Gaming all night long and Anime to match! World class panels on publishing, literature, the art of writing, TV, movies, and art! Filking 'till you drop and then still more filk! A hotel with walls and floors! Stuff that doesn't suck! More exclamation points than you can shake this flyer at!

LOCATION: The Rye Town Hilton
DATE: March 16th-18th, 2007
Check http://www.lunacon.org for updates, special merchandise and more!

Registration Information:

Between July 6th and February 19th, 2007 - $40 Adult Registration Fee
After February 19th or at the Door - $50 Adult Registration Fee

Children between the ages of 6 and 12 (as of March 16th, 2007) are half price. Children under the age of 6 get in for free (when they're with a paid adult).

Look. Bottom line here? We're gonna be doing our best to throw the biggest party this side of a WorldCon. If not bigger. Because honestly? It's Lunacon®50, we don't get to go this crazy for another 50 years. We might as well get it right this time. Because in another 50 years, well...
The Scents of Poison

Join Maria V. Snyder, author of Poison Study and Magic Study, and sample the subtle tastes and smells of chocolate...

and poison.

Maria V. Snyder

2:00 PM

Caudel Ferry Departed with a Blamanger:

Medieval Cooking Revealed Live in All Its [Somewhat Dubious] Glory, with Hot-and-old Running Redaction and Commentary

Also known as A Fifteenth Century Cookry Boke.

Teresa Nielsen Hayden and Jon Singer

Talk Back to Us

You get to tell us what went right, what went wrong, and what you’d like to see more of next year.

Elspeth Kovar (Capclave 2006), Colleen Cahill (Capclave 2007), and Sam Scheiner (Capclave 2008)

Registration Closes

3:00 PM

Dealers’ Room Closes

Town Square Closes

6-ish

Dead Dodo Party

Join us in the Town Square after we finish wrapping up another Capclave.
Program Schedule

[Panel discussions are one hour unless otherwise noted. Panel moderators are identified by an (m) after their name.]

Friday

3:00 PM

Registration Opens

BALLROOM LEVEL

Town Square (Con Suite) Opens

ASSEMBLY

4:00 PM

Dealers’ Room Opens

CHESAPEAKE

5:00 PM

So You Want to Throw a Party?

ASSEMBLY

Join our intrepid party-throwers for tips and hints on throwing a party, the essential items to include in your party kit, how to make the best use of your space, and other information they've learned through trial and error.

Bill Lawhorn, Bob MacIntosh, and Mike Pederson.

Just Because You’re in SFWA Doesn’t Mean I Have to Put You on Programming.

SEVERN

And other enlightening tales from the trenches of convention programming. Conventions like having authors and editors be part of their programming. Most of the time. Some potential panelists shoot themselves in the foot, however, either because of the way they approach the committee, or because of their behavior at previous conventions, or just by being generally annoying. We’ll tell you some stories of how some new authors have made an incredibly positive impression on programming people, and how others have earned themselves a place on the “not over my dead body” lists of programming heads around the country.

Elaine Brennan (m), Jim Mann, and Teresa Nielsen Hayden.

3:00 PM

Reading

Kim Stanley Robinson TWENTY II

Noon

Giving Good Interview

ANNAPOLIS

Are you struck dumb at the sight of someone bringing a microphone near you? Join are panelists as they offer up their tips to make the best of your moments in the spotlight.

Jim Freund, Paul Fischer, and Mike Zipser

Why is “Genre” a Dirty Word?

CAPITOL

Let’s talk about the way so many people talk about genre fiction with an air of not-so-vague Puritan guilt — they might feel that reading genre is, somehow, lowering or perhaps they were scared in the cradle by somebody equating “make-believe” with filth.

Terri Osborne, Patrick Nielsen Hayden, Michael Swanwick

12:30 PM

Reading

Catherynne Valente TWENTY II

1:00 PM

Reading

Kim Stanley Robinson TWENTY II

Reading

George Scithers TWENTY I

Expanding and Maintaining an Audience

CAPITOL

Fictionwise. Translations. Viral marketing.

Lawrence M. Schoen and Diane Turnshek

The Magazine Editor’s Life

TWENTY I

George Scithers talks about being an editor (especially a magazine editor) and as the senior magazine editor currently active in our field.

George Scithers

Reading

A. C. Crispin TWENTY II

---

Sunday continued

Reading

Kim Stanley Robinson TWENTY II

Noon

Giving Good Interview

ANNAPOLIS

Are you struck dumb at the sight of someone bringing a microphone near you? Join are panelists as they offer up their tips to make the best of your moments in the spotlight.

Jim Freund, Paul Fischer, and Mike Zipser

Why is “Genre” a Dirty Word?

CAPITOL

Let’s talk about the way so many people talk about genre fiction with an air of not-so-vague Puritan guilt — they might feel that reading genre is, somehow, lowering or perhaps they were scared in the cradle by somebody equating “make-believe” with filth.

Terri Osborne, Patrick Nielsen Hayden, Michael Swanwick

12:30 PM

Reading

Catherynne Valente TWENTY II

1:00 PM

Just Because You’re in SFWA Doesn’t Mean I Have to Put You on Programming.

SEVERN

And other enlightening tales from the trenches of convention programming. Conventions like having authors and editors be part of their programming. Most of the time. Some potential panelists shoot themselves in the foot, however, either because of the way they approach the committee, or because of their behavior at previous conventions, or just by being generally annoying. We’ll tell you some stories of how some new authors have made an incredibly positive impression on programming people, and how others have earned themselves a place on the “not over my dead body” lists of programming heads around the country.

Elaine Brennan (m), Jim Mann, and Teresa Nielsen Hayden.

---

Friday

3:00 PM

Registration Opens

BALLROOM LEVEL

Town Square (Con Suite) Opens

ASSEMBLY

4:00 PM

Dealers’ Room Opens

CHESAPEAKE

5:00 PM

So You Want to Throw a Party?

ASSEMBLY

Join our intrepid party-throwers for tips and hints on throwing a party, the essential items to include in your party kit, how to make the best use of your space, and other information they’ve learned through trial and error.

Bill Lawhorn, Bob MacIntosh, and Mike Pederson.

12:30 PM

Reading

Catherynne Valente TWENTY II

1:00 PM

Just Because You’re in SFWA Doesn’t Mean I Have to Put You on Programming.

SEVERN

And other enlightening tales from the trenches of convention programming. Conventions like having authors and editors be part of their programming. Most of the time. Some potential panelists shoot themselves in the foot, however, either because of the way they approach the committee, or because of their behavior at previous conventions, or just by being generally annoying. We’ll tell you some stories of how some new authors have made an incredibly positive impression on programming people, and how others have earned themselves a place on the “not over my dead body” lists of programming heads around the country.

Elaine Brennan (m), Jim Mann, and Teresa Nielsen Hayden.

---

Friday

3:00 PM

Registration Opens

BALLROOM LEVEL

Town Square (Con Suite) Opens

ASSEMBLY
Sunday, 10 AM continued

Forty Signs of Rain/Fifty Degrees Below: CAPITOL
Reader Responses
In June, rain disrupted Amtrak service, flooding tunnels and a major subway station, drowning crops and knocking out power to government buildings. It was eerily reminiscent of our Guest of Honor’s recent novel Forty Signs of Rain; now some of us are dreading the coming winter.

Doug Fratz, Victoria McManus, Nancy Jane Moore, and Patrick Nielsen Hayden.

Reading Paul Park TWENTY II

10:30 AM

Reading John G. Hemry TWENTY I

Reading James Morrow TWENTY II

11:00 AM

Dealers’ Room Opens CHESAPEAKE

How To Get a Real Agent [2 hours] TWENTY I

This workshop will include handouts and information on how to write a query letter and synopsis. Limited to 10.

A.C. Crispin

It Reads Like Fantasy to Me ANNAPELIS

Genre tropes abound in stories and novels not catalogued as genre. Share examples — good and bad — along with tales of assimilation. Or comment on Paul McAuley’s recent blogging on a similar topic.

Dennis Danvers, Mindy Klasky, James Morrow, and Ed Schubert

Alice Sheldon/James Tiptree Jr. SEVERN

Saturday, 10 pm continued

Conversation Pit: What is a Novel? TWENTY II
Paul Park, Kim Stanley Robinson, and Michael Swanwick

11:00 PM

Creative Cursing and Impressive Insults SEVERN

[This item has been swiped from DucKon programming.] What does the way your characters curse or insult others say about your world-building expertise? Come invent some new hierarchies of curses — the last person not laughing wins.
Keith R.A. DeCandido, Esther Friesner, John G. Hemry, and Lawrence M. Schoen

Sunday

9:00 AM

Town Square Opens ASSEMBLY

10:00 AM

Registration Opens BALLROOM LEVEL

Writing Short Shorts ANNAPOSILS
Laura Anne Gilman, Benjamin Rosenblum, and Michael Swanwick.

Contracts Workshop [2 hours] COUNSEL
Come and learn the secrets of publishing contracts. Pitfalls to avoid. What you can usually change just by asking. What they won’t budge an inch on. What do those odd terms mean: sub-rights, territories, reserve against returns, first option, basket or joint, flow through? Bring questions to ask these experienced authors and editors. Limited to 15 participants.
Jane Jewell, Michael Capobianco, Ann Crispin, and Peter Heck

Friday evening continued

10:00 PM

Conversation Pit: Non-Human Characters TWENTY I
A continuation of a conversation on the topic begun at L.A.con IV. Lawrence said something there about Jar-Jar Binks and Tourette’s Syndrome. We want to find out where this conversation goes next!
Walter H. Hunt and Lawrence M. Schoen

Group Reading Broad Universe TWENTY II
Broad Universe is an international organization with the primary goal of promoting science fiction, fantasy, and horror written by women. Four of its members will be doing readings from their own works. They will also read a selection from a novel by Schelly Steelman, who passed away about a month ago. Schelly was a DC-area writer and a member of Broad Universe. Her first novel came out last year.
Victoria McManus, Nancy Jane Moore (m), Kathryn Sullivan, and Catherynne Valente

11:00 PM

Flannel Pajamas Books CAPITOL
Some books are like a good set of flannel pajamas — or flannel sheets, if you prefer to sleep naked. They keep you warm when it’s cold, wick away sweat when it’s hot — they’re just comfortable. When the chips are down and you want to crawl into a comforting nest, what books do you take along with you and why?
Gregory Frost, Peter Heck, and Tom Whitmore.

Late Night Reading Diane Turnshek TWENTY II
Saturday

8:30 AM
Town Square Opens  ASSEMBLY

10:00 AM
Dealer's Room Opens  CHESAPEAKE
Registration Opens  BALLROOM LEVEL
Reading Aloud  COUNSEL
Catherynne Valente will read a brief excerpt from one of her works and dissect it line by line for reading choices and talk about things like vocal inflection and character. Workshop participants will then each have the opportunity to read an excerpt from one of their own works and get notes and suggestions on its presentation. The workshop is limited to 12 participants.
Catherynne Valente.

Astronomy and Science Fiction  CAPITOL
Exploring strange new worlds happens as often at a writer's keyboard as it does at an astronomer's eyepiece. In the real world, planets get promoted and demoted. Discuss astronomy in science fiction.
Michael Capobianco, Matthew Jarpe, Yoji Kondo (Eric Kotani), and Michael Swanwick.

Reading  TWENTY II
Karl Schroeder

Reading  TWENTY II
Catherine Asaro

Saturday, 8 pm continued

Alternative Sexualities in SFF  ANNAPOlis
How well are alternative sexualities portrayed in science fiction and fantasy? This panel will conclude with the announcement of the 2006 Gaylactic Spectrum Awards.
Rob Gates, Nancy Jane Moore.

LibraryThing  TWENTY I
It's an online cataloging tool that's become a social networking site too. Come talk about how we're using LibraryThing — and what we might do with it in the future.
Colleen Cahill

Reading  Esther Friesner  TWENTY II

9:00 PM
Fancy Dress Reception  POTOMAC
It is with pleasure that the Capclave 2006 committee announces a fancy dress reception, co-hosted with the Science Fiction and Fantasy Writers of America (SFWA). Fancy dress is encouraged but not required; drop-dead dress or jeans as you prefer.

Group Discussion: New Novelists  ASSEMBLY
Join the group and discuss the realities of finally being a published author. Wander between our Fancy Dress Reception in Potomac and the Town Square.
Karl Schroeder, Jeri Smith-Ready, Maria V. Snyder, and Catherynne Valente.

10:00 PM
Ask Dr. Science  CAPITOL
Engineer/scientist-authors answer random questions from the audience about, oh, anything science-related. Some answers should be taken with several grains of salt.
Carl Frederick, John G. Hemry, and Matthew Jarpe.
5:30 PM

Reading  Scott Edelman  TWENTY II

7:00 PM

The New Weird, The Interstitial Arts  COUNSEL
What are we trying to accomplish by defining new ways of looking at all/some/a small piece of speculative fiction/science fiction/fantasy?
Gregory Frost, L. Jagi Lamplighter and Catherynne Valente.

Battle of the Sexes in SFF  ANNAPOLIS
Discussion of the changing roles women have played in shaping science fiction. This can range from considering the range of women characters in SF (from sex objects to 3-D characters in stories) to questioning whether and how women's roles as authors, editors, and reviewers in the science fiction field and as fans have changed.
Barbara Krasnoff, Nancy Jane Moore, and James Morrow

7:30 PM

Reading  Michail Velichansky  TWENTY II

8:00 PM

Guests of Honor Presentation  CAPITOL
GoHs Kim Stanley Robinson and Tom Whitmore in Conversation: Intentional Communities.
Kim Stanley Robinson and Tom Whitmore.

11:00 AM

Writing Non-Human Characters  ANNAPOLIS
It’s difficult for humans to think past the reality of how we think sufficiently to create something that’s more of an alien than an anthropomorphized Gila monster or a psychic tarantula. How do we make non-human characters alive but not weird or so cliched that readers begin yawning as soon as they’re introduced?
Laura Anne Gilman, Edward M. Lerner, Benjamin Rosenblum, and John C. Wright.

A Taxonomy of Fantasy?  CAPITOL
“Primary fantasy,” “source fantasy,” “mythic fantasy,” “hard fantasy,” “dark fantasy,” “urban fantasy”... the list goes on. Rather than talk about what defines fantasy, let’s talk what it does, what it does in combination with what other forms of literature, what characterizes its permutations, the ancestry of its sub-forms, et cetera.
Gregory Frost, Teresa Nielsen Hayden, and Paul Park.

Reading  Kim Stanley Robinson  TWENTY II

NOON

Kim Stanley Robinson’s Short Fiction  CAPITOL
Stan’s short stories have won the Nebula, Locus, World Fantasy and Asimov’s Reader Poll awards, and have garnered nine Hugo nominations and seven Nebula nominations. Let’s talk about some of our favorites.
Tom Doyle, Andy Duncan, and Doug Fratz.
Saturday, noon continued

Humor in Short Fiction
  Esther Friesner, John G. Hemry, and Bud Sparhawk

Reading  Keith R. A. DeCandido

12:30 PM

Reading  Gregory Frost

1:00 PM

Viral Batteries and Other New Science
  It’s hard to keep up these days. Quantum dots replace photovoltaic cells, we learn more about the ways our brain processes mathematics. Scientists focus on the intersection of physics and game theory, an optical atomic clock, magma crystallization. MIT researchers are developing low-cost manufacturing methods based on the rapid reproduction of viruses. What else from real science is closer to “fiction about science” than our genre fiction?
  Catherine Asaro, Matthew Jarpe, Sam Scheiner, and Karl Schroeder.

Terrascape the Universe
  Some books and stories re-arrange your inner landscape. It’s that same feeling you got the first time you put on glasses and realized you could actually see leaves on trees. What stories revolutionized the way you think, feel, or view the world?
  Yoji Kondo (Eric Kotani), Darrell Schweitzer, and John C. Wright.

First Sentence, First Paragraph:

What Does It Take To Grab You?
  Great first sentences, to work, have to be sneaky or elegant. But great first sentences are rare. So what qualities does a novel or story have to have to make you keep reading beyond that first sentence or first paragraph?
  Keith R. A. DeCandido, Gregory Frost, and Laura Anne Gilman

Saturday, 4 pm continued

The Evolution of Artificial Intelligence
  Tom Doyle, Edward M. Lerner, James Morrow

Lost
  It’s a TV show; it’s the subject of fanfic; it’s on many people’s “must-watch” lists.
  Michael Capobianco and A. C. Crispin

Reading  Benjamin Rosenblum

5:00 PM

Endings: Slingshots and Other Varieties of Wrapping Up
  KSR defined the term “slingshot endings”: where an author slowly starts putting the narrative hooks for the sequel into the present text, careful all the while not to disrupt it. In the final pages, as the resolution of the present story becomes clear, so does the nature of the sequel. It’s not always done well – let’s talk about how and when it is done well, as well as the many other challenges of creating good endings.
  Paul Park, Karl Schroeder, Maria V. Snyder, and Michael Velichansky

Fan Guest of Honor Presentation
  Fan GoH Tom Whitmore and Friends: What do we know, and how do we know that we know it?
  Teresa Nielsen Hayden, Jon Singer, and Tom Whitmore.

Building a Space-Faring Civilization:
  Can we get there from here?
  What does constitute a space-faring civilization? What technologies do we need to build one? Can we get there from here? How do we get there from here?
  Catherine Asaro, Yoji Kondo (Eric Kotani), Tom MacCabe, and Karl Schroeder.

Reading  Lawrence M. Schoen
Saturday afternoon continued

3:00 PM

Author GoH Presentation: Global Warming
Kim Stanley Robinson [May run 90 minutes.]
CAPITOL

The Future of Small Press Magazines
Neil Clarke, Ed Schubert, Sean Wallace, and Lawrence Watt-Evans
SEVERN

Reading Jeri Smith-Ready
TWENTY II

3:30 PM

Reading Maria V. Snyder
TWENTY II

4:00 PM

Reviewers Workshop [Two hours]
TWENTY I

A discussion of the problems and techniques of book reviewing, with an emphasis on reviewing of SF, fantasy and related genres. Participants may bring a short review (under 500 words) of a recent book for group discussion; anyone who wishes may give Peter a short review to be copied and handed out (anonymously) for group discussion; Peter will try to include any reviews he gets by noon on Friday. In addition to consideration of specific reviews, the workshop will focus on ways to write an effective and useful review, the relation of reviewing and criticism, and the requirements of different audiences.

Peter Heck.

My Best and Worst Reviews
ANNAPOLIS

Author panelists bring copies of reviews that they’re particularly fond of to share with the audience and then talk about what makes something a “good” review for them.

Colleen Cahill (m), Gregory Frost, John G. Hemry, and Matthew Jarpe.

Saturday, 1 PM continued

Reading Edward M. Lerner
TWENTY I

Reading Mindy Klasky
TWENTY II

1:30 PM

Reading Barbara Krasnoff
TWENTY I

Reading Victoria McManus
TWENTY II

2:00 PM

Fantasy and Science Fiction and Horror, Oh My!
Do we need dividing lines? Or as Sarah Monette said recently, “They are different. They are the same. Both statements are true, and both matter.” Discuss.

Power, Money, Sex, Love, Aliens, and Beasts
SEVERN

Altering the formal rituals that clue us in to social hierarchies and relationships can be a powerful part of fiction. What things are so obvious to a Western eye that we never question their appearance in science fiction and fantasy stories?

Victoria McManus, James Morrow, and Catherynne Valente.

Dr. Gafia is out: Remembering rich brown
TWENTY II

Washington-area fan rich brown passed away earlier this year. Join some of his friends for some rich brown-related stories.

Steve Stiles and Ted White

Reading Terri Osborne
TWENTY II

2:30 PM

Reading Laura Anne Gilman
TWENTY II
The Mezzanine Level of the hotel is reachable either via a short staircase or by a small elevator/wheelchair lift from the main hotel lobby level. You can also use the elevators on the second floor between the Potomac Room and Maryland Ballroom or the stairwell across the hall from that elevator lobby to reach the Mezzanine level.

TWENTY I and TWENTY II: “TWENTY” is our code for the rooms numbered X20 where X = floor number. We hope the hotel will tell us which floor these rooms will be located on Real Soon Now.